Objectives:
- presenting to law students a wide variety of topics related to European IP and ICT law, including comparative sessions on national implementations of European law and important cases;
- developing practical skills necessary for daily practice as a legal advisor by offering a workshop on contract negotiations run by a notable legal practitioner as well as including student presentations on pertinent cases resulting from work in small groups;
- improving students’ knowledge of legal English, mainly of specialized vocabulary.

Topics of focus: legal theory, copyright, patent and trademark law, data protection, telecommunications law, legal protection of software and databases, contract law and consumer protection on the internet, liability in cyberspace, applicable law in cyberspace, contract drafting and negotiations.

Organizer: European Academy of Law and ICT (http://lawandict.eu), formerly called “Vienna Group”, has organized the Summer School since 2006 in partner countries. Partners included University of Bmo (Czech Republic), Vienna University of Economics, since 2009 University of Goettingen (Germany), University of Pecs (Hungary), University of Bratislava (Slovakia), University of Wroclaw (Poland), Forschungsverein Infolaw (Austria). In 2014 the Law and Internet Foundation (Bulgaria) joined the group of partners. The Corvinus University Budapest (Hungary) became a member in 2015.

Target group: 3, 4 and 5-year law students from European universities, post-graduate students. 20 Students will be sent from partner universities. 30 students will be selected from applications from all over Europe. Interested students are asked to submit an application including a short CV and a brief description of their research interests. A committee will select the students that are to take part. Participants will be asked to pay a fee of € 400 to cover the costs of accommodation.

Teachers: Teachers are well known experts in the field of IP and IT from European partner universities and other leading academic institutions in the field as well as from leading practitioners.

Programme: The focus of the lectures given by well known academics will be on European law and a comparative analysis of IP and IT law in different European countries. Students will be asked to actively participate and apply their knowledge by working on case studies. They will have a chance to present the results of their work on Presentation Day and will be given feedback by the lecturers. A contract drafting session will be held by Christopher Kuner (Brussels), one of the leading IT practitioners in Europe.

Social programme: Reichenau used to be the summer vacation of the Austrian emperors and is one of the most beautiful places in Austria. Social programme will include a trip to the mountains, cultural events and evening parties.
